

SERIES: YOUR INTEGRITY, OUR WORLD

Episode 1: "The Inescapable Ought"

People with integrity do the right thing simply because they know they ought to. This "ought to" is inescapable and holds you accountable, but what is this "ought to" connected to?

	QUESTIONS	NOTES
O1 >>>>	Describe a time when you were faced with a decision where doing the right thing would cost you something. How did you handle the situation?
02 >>>>	When do you typically find yourself searching for the loophole in situations that you know you ought to act on?
03	Do you have any concrete "ought to" scenarios that you won't sway from, no matter the cost? Why do you think you are so convinced about these specific scenarios over others?

BOTTOM LINE

"Ought to" is not completely up to us — the moment we attempt to justify a behavior in our minds, we acknowledge the law of God written on our hearts.

Learn something new? Have any epiphanies? Tweet your story and tag us @YourMove.